Poipu Bay's Dusenberry and Bahouth finish strong to win 2024 Pro-Pro Championship presented by Golf Concepts at Hōkūala

Hōkūala, Princeville Makai and Nanea teams finish second

KAUA'I, Hawai'i – After competing for over a decade in one of the Aloha Section PGA's most storied events yet never finishing higher than sixth place, Poipu Bay's Chad Dusenberry finally ended his drought on the Ocean Course at Hōkūala to win the 2024 Pro-Pro Championship presented by Golf Concepts. Alongside Chasen Bahouth (Poipu Bay), the South Shore duo shot a final-round 66 for a well-earned one-shot victory over Kaua'i's Tom Freestone (Ocean Course at Hōkūala) and Michael Neider (Princeville Makai), as well as Jeff Ingman (Nanea) and Kimberly Kim (Nanea).

"I've been searching a long time for the right partner...I am relieved to have finally found him!" remarked Chad Dusenberry, head golf professional at Poipu Bay Golf Course. "This has always been a fun event. Even players on other teams still root for you and encourage you to play better. Our tight-knit community is what makes the Aloha Section PGA so special."

Dusenberry and Bahouth's final round was fueled by six birdies in a seven-hole stretch, including four straight on holes 10–13. They needed every scoring opportunity. Freestone, who just returned to Kaua'i after playing in the final stage of qualifying for the 124th U.S. Open and finishing T1 in local qualifying, competed with lots of momentum alongside Neider, his fellow Kaua'i and Troon PGA Professional.

Also tied for second place was the Big Island duo of Ingman and Kim. Born and raised in Hilo, Kim was the youngest player to win the U.S. Women's Amateur (2006) at age 14. Her decorated amateur career featured runner-up finishes at the 2006 and 2009 U.S. Women's Amateur Public Links and 2009 U.S. Girls' Junior.

Juan Rodriguez (Nanea), nephew of World Golf Hall of Fame member Chi-Chi Rodriguez and Hunter Larson (Big Island Golf), the 2022 Aloha Section PGA Player of the Year, finished in solo fifth at six-under-par after winning last year's tournament in a playoff.

"After an amazing 17-year run at Kā'anapali, Hōkūala offered a fun challenge this weekend for many of our state's most talented PGA Professionals," said Wes Wailehua, executive director of the Aloha Section PGA. "We were thrilled with this year's exciting finish and can't wait to visit Pearl at Kalalau in 2025 after their grand reopening this winter."

Incorporated in 1975, the Aloha Section PGA serves 236 members across 90 facilities in Hawai'i. The organization's mission is to promote interest, participation and enjoyment in golf throughout Hawai'i.
